In Ephesians 3:20–21, Paul reminds us of this powerful truth: God is able. He can do far more than we ask, imagine, or think possible, “according to the power that worketh in us.”

Life has a way of showing us our limits. We try, plan, pray, and work hard, but sometimes we still have to say, “I can’t do this on my own.” That moment is not failure. It may be the very place where we finally stop depending on our strength and start trusting God’s strength. Paul’s message is simple: God is able. Our weakness does not weaken Him. Our limits do not limit Him. What looks impossible to us is still possible with God. God does not only work around us; He works in us. When we are tired, He gives strength. When we are unsure, He gives direction. When we cannot see the way, He makes a way. So do not judge what God can do by what you can do. Your strength may be small. Your resources may be few. Your understanding may be limited, but God is not limited. Whatever you are facing today, hold on to this truth: You do not have to be able when you serve a God who is able. Trust His power. Depend on His strength. Let Him work in you and through you.
